ORIGINAL REPORT

This group came from Bosnia. They were walking for 3 days. One minor included. Some policemen with casual clothes stopped them, then they called to other colleagues : Croatian National Police. When they were stopped, one guy started to run away but 3 policemen went behind him and caught him. One police took his cell phone and checked out google maps. Once he finished, the mobile was destroyed.

This guy (H., 21) was beaten in the field all over the body. He has injuries in the right ribs and the right foot.

They were taken to the police station, where they spent 2 hours and a half while police was checking their mobiles, specially tracking google maps. There, H. endured physical violence again : kicking.

Afterwards, the group was taken to the Bosnian border, 20km north from Velika Kladuša. The policemen threatened them : "If 2nd time you come, I'll take you prison". They added that Croatian local people call police if they see them walking around.
