ORIGINAL REPORT

On August 29th. 2017, a group of 6 Algerians, 3 of them minors, were captured by Slovenian police in a train from Zagreb to Ljubljana, at the Croatian-Slovenian border. They were kept in custody for eight hours without food or water. They were handed over to Croatian police, who brought them to the Serbo-Croatian border. At the border, police officers took them out of the van one by one and sent them across the border. They kicked and punched them, using hands and sticks. They also beat the minors. The interviewee had injuries at the chin and shoulder. Others also hurt their heads.
